WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

Temperatures will remain cool today and into the weekend as an upper level trough lingers over the Pacific Northwest. Expect some night and morning coastal low clouds and fog as well. Dry weather will last into next week with a gradual warming trend inland as high pressure returns.

San Francisco Weather:

Dry weather conditions and near normal temperatures will persist through much of the forecast period. Overnight and early morning coastal clouds will be possible through the weekend and will likely spread inland into the valleys by early next week.

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY

Sacramento Weather:

An upper low pressure system moving through the Pacific Northwest will bring continued near normal daytime high temperatures today. Weak high pressure and a more northwest flow will bring a slight warm up over the weekend. Another low moving into the Pacific Northwest early next week will keep temperatures level through mid-week but any precipitation is expected to remain north and east of the area. Warmer temperatures are expected towards the end of next week as weak high pressure rebuilds.

Hanford Weather:

A westerly wind aloft will allow for a continued slight cooling trend. This westerly wind is expected through the week achieving near normal temperatures for the weekend.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

Overnight low clouds and fog will continue into at least early next week. A weak trough and onshore breezes will keep temperatures near normal through the period, with only minor fluctuations day to day.

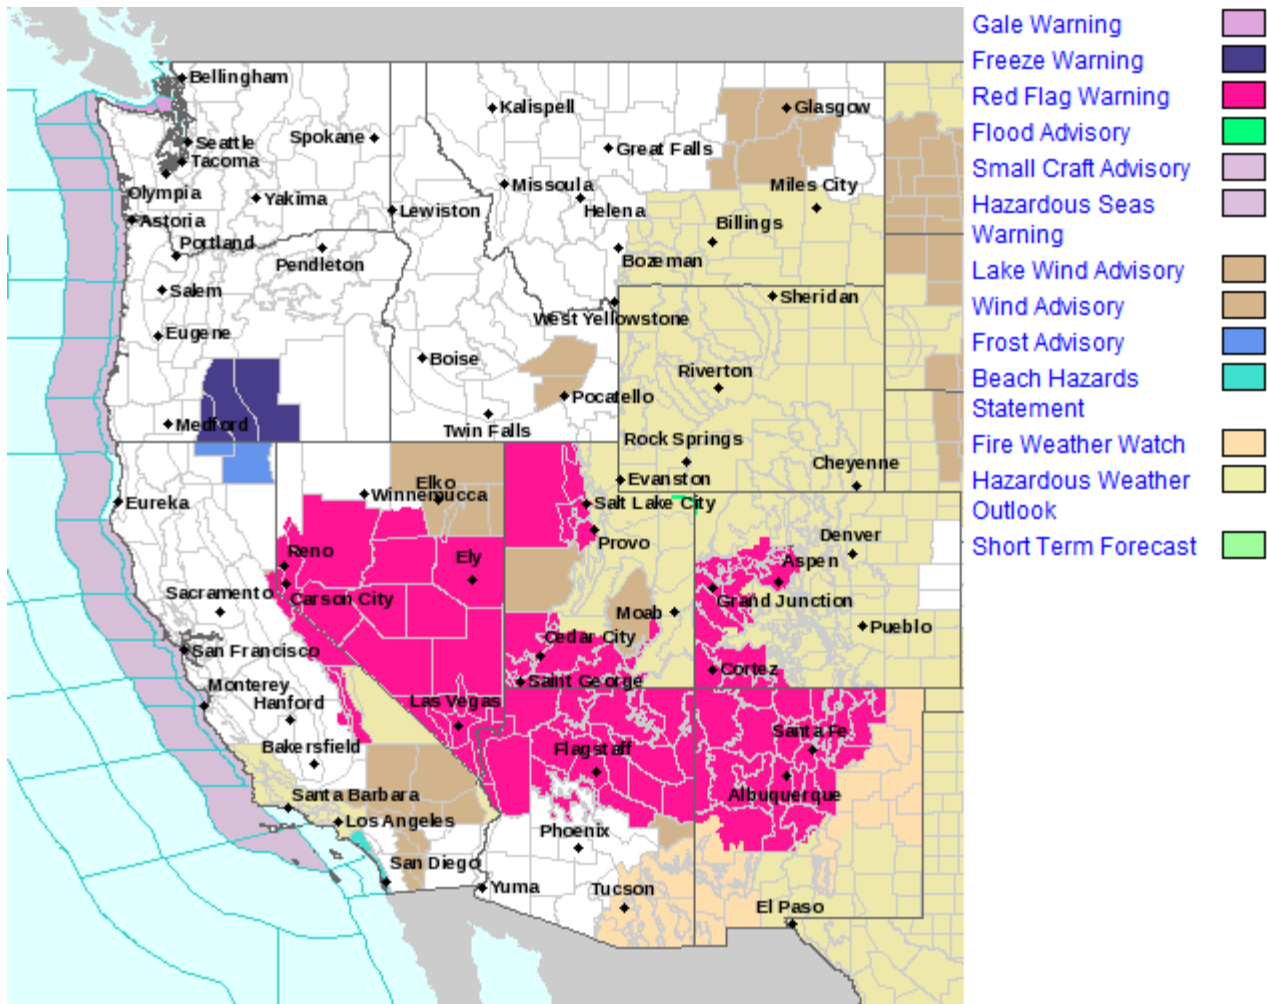

Extreme Southwestern California Including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

Seasonal weather will continue through next week. Night and morning low clouds will continue in the coasts and valleys with only minor variations in the marine layer depth. Gusty west winds in the mountains and deserts in the afternoons and evenings, strongest this evening. High temperatures will be near to slightly below normal.

Southeast California Weather:

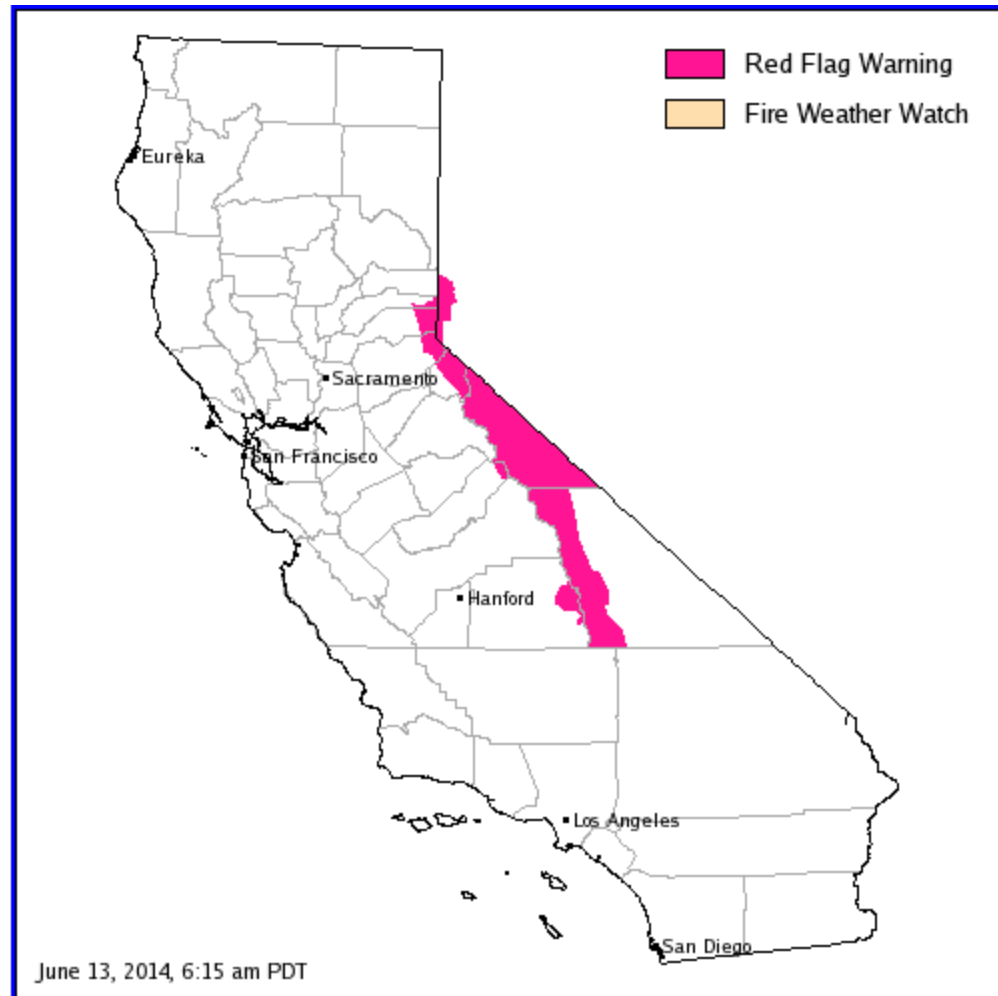

High pressure centered over northern Mexico will maintain near to above normal temperatures and overall dry conditions into the weekend before a gradual cooling trend takes place for next week. Dry and warm conditions with highs slightly below normal are expected for much of next week.

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

Situational Summary

On January 17, 2014 Governor Edmund G. Brown proclaimed a State of Emergency and directed state officials to take all necessary actions to prepare for drought conditions. The State Operation Center (SOC) is activated to implement objectives in support of the Governor's priorities. The lack of winter rain and snowfall has resulted in extremely dry conditions in many parts of the State. Reservoir levels are down significantly from where they should be on average for this time of year. If conditions continue without substantial rainfall, severe impacts to municipal water supplies, agriculture (plants and livestock) and firefighting capabilities are likely in store for the State over the next few months. Negative economic impacts will also result.

*As our state's rainy season comes to an end, it is highly unlikely that precipitation totals will increase significantly. This winter's below average rain and snowfall worsens conditions in this third straight dry year.

The drought could result in severe impacts to the municipal water supplies, wells, agriculture (plants and livestock) and firefighting capabilities for several months. The SOC continues to be activated to monitor the situation statewide, and support regional and local operational areas.

- The Taskforce continues to meet regularly to take actions that conserve water and coordinate state response to the drought.
- The final manual snowpack survey of the season was conducted on Thursday (May 1) and showed California snowpack at 18% of normal. A more recent update using automated devices shows snowpack at 0% of normal as of June 3.
- DWR has announced that water essential for health and safety will be delivered through the state water project. The current State Water Project Allocation is 5%.
- Cal OES continues to gather drought-related costs from state agencies and local governments.
